
Stocks Have Mixed Reaction

Weekly Update – August 3, 2020

The Week on Wall Street

Stocks were mixed last week amid a busy week of earnings, some troubling economic data, and seemingly little progress on a new fiscal stimulus package.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average slipped 0.16%, while the Standard & Poor's 500 increased by 1.73%. The Nasdaq Composite Index surged 3.69% for the week. The MSCI EAFE Index, which tracks developed stock markets overseas, dipped 0.75%.^{1,2,3}

Stocks Buffeted by Crosswinds

Stocks rode a roller coaster last week, reacting to a conflicting stream of corporate events and economic data.

Investors were optimistic on Monday about the ability of mega-cap technology companies to thrive in an uncertain economy, but worried on Tuesday about pending Congressional testimony involving the CEOs of these firms.

On the economic front, a strong June durable goods orders report on Monday bolstered investor sentiment. But the optimism faded on a disappointing jobless claims number and a troubling second-quarter GDP number that—while anticipated—was a bit unsettling.^{4,5,6}

Following some exceptional earnings results from the mega-cap technology companies, stocks managed to rally in the final hour of trading on Friday.

U.S. Dollar Continues Its Decline

Since peaking in mid-March, the U.S. dollar has dropped nearly 9%. Some of the potential beneficiaries of a weak dollar are global American businesses whose products and services become less expensive in overseas markets.⁷

Conversely, international companies may suffer lower sales in the U.S. as their products become more expensive. It's a mixed bag of potential outcomes, but Wall Street has become more and more focused on the dollar's trajectory.

Final Thoughts

August has historically been a particularly volatile month. For instance, in 2019, the S&P 500 posted moves of more than one percent in 22 trading days.⁸

One of the possible reasons is that many traders are away on vacation, resulting in light volume, which may amplify market volatility. But this year, it's uncertain whether traders will be away on vacation due to the pandemic. Should markets become volatile in the weeks ahead, investors may want to remind themselves of the seasonal trends that may be at work.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Prickly Pear Popsicles

8 popsicles

Prickly pears are used in many Mexican dishes, thanks to their bright pink fruit and tart, yet sweet, flavor. These popsicles are a toast to a beautiful summer!

Ingredients:

- 8 prickly pears
- ½ cup lime juice
- ½ cup water
- ⅓ cup agave
- 1 tsp. kosher salt

Directions:

1. Carefully slice the prickly pear flesh from the skin (be careful of the thorns!).

2. Blend the pears, lime juice, water, agave, and salt together in a blender. Puree until smooth.
3. Pour the mixture through a fine mesh strainer. Once strained, pour the liquid into popsicle molds.

Tips for Good Golf Posture

Every golfer knows that posture is the foundation for everything you do on and off the course. It can make or break your game. These tips can help you achieve proper posture (and maybe that 250-yard drive?):

- Rather than bending over the club, make sure that you have the same spine angle as you would while standing up, just hinged from your hips over the club.
- Your hands should hang straight down from your shoulder rather than reaching past your shoulders.
- If your spine is in the correct position, you should have much more rotation. More rotation means more power and a more accurate shot.
- Because your arms are hanging straight down and aren't holding tension, your body should rotate with your core before your upper body.

Good posture can help prevent injuries and improve your game.

Quick-and-Easy Meal Planning Tips

Meal planning is a great way to stick with your nutrition goals, avoid the last-minute snack temptations, and save money. Plus, it's not hard to get started! These tips will help you plan some meals like a pro:

- Start small by planning just a few meals a week. Three or four lunches should get you in the habit of meal planning.
- Start simple. If you do research on meal planning recipes, you might feel overwhelmed with all your options. Instead, focus on the main food groups and choose your favorite options. An example might be salmon, sweet potatoes, and broccoli.
- Invest in high-quality containers. You can either choose containers with separate sections for each item, or glass containers you can just throw in the microwave.
- Keep a well-stocked pantry, including legumes, whole grains, proteins, vegetables, and fruit, for a last-minute meal.

Which Type of Grill Is the Most Environmentally Friendly?

With summer in full swing, we're loving all the delicious grilled meals we can make outside. But have you ever wondered which type of grill is the most environmentally friendly? Let's look at the efficiency and impact of gas versus charcoal grills.

Although charcoal can come from renewable resources, and gas comes from non-renewable fossil fuels, gas grills are still more environmentally friendly. This is because gas grills produce much less carbon dioxide. In addition, unless you are using true charcoal, many charcoal options contain a mixture of substances, like cornstarch and lighter fluid. When burned, this charcoal produces 105 times more carbon monoxide than propane. Gas wins for green grilling!
